Historic Aerial Photography at Statewide Planning

The Statewide Planning Program maintains Rhode Island's collection of historic aerial photography. Over 10,000 photographic prints dating back to 1938 are stored in the Graphics Room on the third floor of this building. We are currently replicating this valuable resource as digital products through a computerized scanning process. These scanned images are being made available to the public as an additional resource for more "high tech" applications. The samples shown here are examples of changes on the Rhode Island landscape that can be seen over the years.
